In 1999, Mrs. Diana Fowler LeBlanc created the Diana Fowler LeBlanc Aboriginal Social Work Scholarship through her own fundraising efforts to provide nearly $1.5 million in funding for First Nation, Inuit and Métis students interested in pursuing undergraduate or graduate degrees in Social Work at recognized universities and colleges across Canada. This scholarship is aimed primarily, but not exclusively, at mature students who wish to obtain a social work degree, and who may already be doing work related to this field in their communities. Indigenous applicants from all Canadian provinces and territories interested in pursuing a post secondary education in the field of Social Work are encouraged to apply.

Diana Fowler LeBlanc was educated at King’s Hall, Compton, Quebec and obtained her diploma in French Civilization from the University of Paris. In 1996, she earned her Bachelor of Social Work from McGill University. She continues to be passionately committed to the advancement of social issues, and has received Honorary Doctorates from the University of Ottawa (1999) and the University of Sudbury (2000) recognizing her interest and support of Indigenous issues.
