Message from the Chair

We know the fastest route to success is education and as an organization, it is an enormous privilege to play a small but important part in enabling our youth to succeed. When we fund students we also provide them with other supports and through successive surveys, these students have told Indspire that they trust the organization and feel validated.

Indspire is grateful for our donors' generosity. Government, private sector and foundations are all giving money towards improving educational outcomes for First Nations, Inuit and Métis youth. Increasingly, individual Canadians are giving as awareness grows about the place of Indigenous people on this land.

Canada is at a crossroads with respect to Indigenous Peoples and I have great hope for the opportunities ahead. With Indigenous youth as the fastest growing demographic in our population, they have much to contribute and equipping them with the skills and tools that they need will make huge differences in our collective socio-economic welfare. The Center for the Study of Living Standards estimates that if we close the education and labour gaps for Indigenous Peoples in Canada by 2031, Canada's GDP could gain $36 billion.

Indspire is growing its capacity to support Indigenous educators and students. In doing so, it continues to be steered by the able-hand of our CEO Roberta Jamieson. Her thought leadership and inspirational vision are a beacon to us all. Early in 2018, the Government of Canada announced a Gender Equality Advisory Council to provide advice to the G7 countries and Roberta had the honour of being appointed to this council where she focused much of her efforts towards ensuring Indigenous girls and women would not be lost by the focus on supporting girls and women in developing countries.

Roberta was also awarded the prestigious Inter-America award by the Conference of the Americas on International Education for her life long dedication to "applying education as a tool for social advancement" for Indigenous Peoples in Canada. This continental forum brings together key decision-makers involved in the internationalization of higher education in the Americas.

I am indebted to the commitment and hard work of Indspire employees and the sage support, advice and work of our CEO and Board of Directors.

David Tuccaro
Chair, Board of Directors

Message from the President and CEO

I couldn't be prouder of what we achieved in 2017/18. In marking 150 years since Confederation, we started our Canada Youth 150 Tour in Ottawa and travelled the country to seven centres with several youth laureates. These outstanding individuals talked about reconciliation to young audiences and conveyed both messages of hope and aspiration about the importance of education to their futures.

Indigenous education is the force that will guide our country through this era of reconciliation, and we are so proud of the thousands of Indspire-supported students across the country who are leaders on that journey. We have a duty to support their success to ensure that our aspiration of all Indigenous students graduating within the next generation can be realized.

Over this past fiscal year, we distributed $14.2 million to over 4,900 students through our Building Brighter Futures program. Since 2004, we have dispersed nearly $100 million in support to over 32,000 students. In the last two years, approximately 90% of students who received funding through this program have graduated – an impressive success story. The funding they receive enables them to complete their education, enhance their ability to support their families, and give back to their communities.

While we know these programs are having an impact, it is always great to have it recognized. In 2017, Indspire was selected as one of the Top 10 Impact Charities by Charity Intelligence Canada. Charity Intelligence Canada rates 760 charities from across the country and the impact rating they use is based on a simple formula: for every dollar donated, what's the measurable return?

We continue to celebrate the willingness of Canadians to share in this collective journey of supporting First Nations, Inuit and Métis students to a better future. Our individual donor base is close to 10,000 and growing, while governments, corporations, foundations and post-secondary institutions continued to be crucial partners in making our work possible.

We marked Indigenous Peoples Day on June 21, 2017, with a very successful giving campaign that was doubled by the extraordinary generosity of the Eakin family in Montreal – yielding over $150,000. While I speak on many occasions around the country about education and reconciliation, a valuable opportunity included a talk on Paul Kennedy's CBC Ideas on "Canada's Original Promise – Still Waiting to be Realized".

Thank you to all who make possible the work that we do. You are helping make a difference in the lives of Indigenous students – in their schools, communities, and the country. Thank you too for the leadership of the Board of Directors and a dedicated staff that do not waver in their commitment and passion.

Indigenous Education is Canada's Future Growth

Indspire is an Indigenous national charity that invests in the education of Indigenous people for the benefit of these individuals, their families and communities, and Canada.

Our vision is to enrich Canada through Indigenous education and by inspiring achievement. In partnership with Indigenous, private and public sector stakeholders, Indspire educates, connects and invests in Indigenous people so they will achieve their highest potential.

Indspire is Indigenous led for Indigenous people. We serve First Nation, Inuit, and Métis students in rural and remote communities as well as urban centres across Canada. With the support of our funding partners, we disburse financial awards, deliver programs, and share resources with the goal of improving educational outcomes for Indigenous students.

Indspire's K-12 Institute connects educators of Indigenous students with programs, resources, information, tools and a Professional Learning Community to improve educational outcomes, increase high school completion rates and support sustained systematic change.

Each year, we present the Indspire Awards, a nationally broadcast celebration of the successes achieved by Indigenous people. The Awards promote self-esteem and pride for Indigenous communities and provide outstanding role models for Indigenous youth.

Resources and Programs

Successful Practices: Showcasing Strategies that Work

Successful Practices include documented research, frameworks, models, and educational strategies that have worked to enhance student success. Indspire evaluates and shares these proven practices online with Indigenous education stakeholders nationwide.

Successful Practice Spotlight:

Kainai High School Student Success Program: Evaluating 'The Quarter System'

The Quarter System is an educational structure that seeks to improve overall student achievement by increasing the total number of credits attained per year. Research shows that an inability to attain sufficient high school credits has prevented many First Nations and Métis youth from achieving success in secondary schools. Therefore, implementing The Quarter System in schools with high populations of First Nations or Métis students will improve student success. Kainai High School in Southern Alberta is utilizing the Quarter System to improve educational outcomes for its students. This review provides an in-depth analysis of qualitative and quantitative data demonstrating a strong correlation between The Quarter System and the total number of credits First Nations youth have attained in the Kainai community. Issues covered include possible long-term impacts and next steps to ensure further success for this community and its youth.

“Participating in the Indspire mentorship program has provided me with professional development unparalleled to previous learning experiences. The opportunity to network with knowledge keepers and educational experts at a national level directly impacts the students who arrive at my classroom door every day. I am grateful for the support and access to resources provided by the Indspire team to build community and provide opportunities to better my teaching practices. Thank you Indspire!”

Shelley Hosaluk, Mentee, Teacher, SK.

Peer Support: Educator Mentorship

Peer Support is a mentorship and coaching program for educators of Indigenous students. Indspire pairs educators across Canada based on their professional learning goals and provide support online to this learning community through webinars, and other professional development tools. For the 2017-2018 school year, we had 238 active participants in the program.

The number of resources and webinars have continued to grow. This year we added a number of instructional webinars:

- Land-based Program for At-Risk and Special Education Students
- Ways to Incorporate Aspects of Art Therapy in Classrooms
- Professional Learning Pebbles: Activities to Support Teachers on the Path of Reconciliation
- JUMP Math Confidence Building Units
- Indigenous Youth Leadership Program
- Aboriginal Graduation Coach Program: Indigenous Student Capacity Building

Nurturing Capacity: Documenting Community Success

Indspire supports communities to document and evaluate their successful practices. The community-led process is supported by an Indigenous researcher, who works with the community from identifying what data to collect to completion of the evaluation. This year we completed 15 new Nurturing Capacity reports bringing the total to 49 at March 31, 2018. The purpose of posting these reports on our website is to share with and inspire other educators.

Examples include:

- MWE Restorative Practices
- Wahkotowin- Kinship/Family
- Wayfinders
- Francophone Indigenous Resources
- Four Directions
- Deh Gah Elementary and Secondary School

“The Rivers to Success mentorship program changed my life immensely in the past year. When I first met Cynthia, I had never visited the Indigenous Centre on campus and was not comfortable in my Indigenous identity. From the first time we met on Skype, she began to draw that side out of me. Through networking with her, I was able to attend an education conference in Montreal, an Indigenous Women in Leadership conference in Ottawa, and met many of Cynthia’s colleagues, including the Minister of Crown-Indigenous Relations and Northern Affairs. I would recommend this program to absolutely anyone.”

Taylor Arnt, Rivers to Success Mentee, Carleton University

Rivers to Success: Mentoring Indigenous Students

Rivers to Success is a national mentorship program with two streams of mentorship. The post-secondary stream matches Indigenous students with career professionals to assist students transitioning into the workplace or further education. The second stream of mentorship connects Indigenous high school students with post-secondary students to encourage successful high school completions and to support smooth transitions to post-secondary education.

Post-secondary students provide advice and help prepare high school students with study habits, living independently, course selection, the ins and outs of post-secondary life and so much more. Mentorship transforms learning into new actions and helps people realize the power of their own potential. Mentors are a valuable source of wisdom, insight, and lessons from life experience, who provide students with guidance as they consider their future and establish their careers.

This past year, Building Brighter Futures recipients were mentors at 32 post-secondary institutions across the country. These students were matched with both first-year students who are Indspire funding recipients at their school and high school students who are considering attending their institution. Mentors are in 12 of the 13 provinces and territories, with a large portion being in Ontario, British Columbia, Alberta, Manitoba and Saskatchewan.

Events

“Overall, this conference was extremely interesting and well organized! As a tradeshow exhibitor, my colleague and I met so many amazing people, and we were able to connect with a wide range of educators. My colleague and I would definitely be interested in attending future Indspire events.”

2017 National Gathering Tradeshow Exhibitor

“Thank you to the Indspire team for hosting an amazing conference. Thank you for all of the hard work you do and continue to do. You provide access and opportunities for Indigenous and non-Indigenous partners to come together and decolonize/indiginize our minds, body, and soul. Tlazocamati”

National Gathering for Indigenous Education

The National Gathering for Indigenous Education is an annual gathering for educators and others who work with Indigenous students to improve educational outcomes. Attendees share promising practices and collaborate to translate theory into workable strategies. Educators and others attended a Pre-Gathering workshop on reconciliation and 70 workshops at the 5th annual gathering in Montreal, from November 29 – December 1, 2017. Over 770 participants heard keynote speaker Dr. Cindy Blackstock and guest speaker Alika LaFontaine. The next conference will be held in Edmonton, November 7 – 9, 2018.

“Soaring helps young people find hope, hear stories, be inspired to gain cultural knowledge and our languages. It also helps us see the positives side of being indigenous in today’s society and the various supports that are offered to youth.”

Indigenous Educator

Guiding the Journey: Indigenous Educator Awards

Guiding the Journey recognizes and celebrates outstanding educators for their achievement and innovation in Indigenous education. These educators work hard to transform Indigenous education across Canada by advocating for updated resources and more cultural teachings in the curriculum; having innovative teaching practices; and helping Indigenous students reach their full potential. Nine educators and one organization were honoured at the National Gathering in Montreal on December 1, 2017.

Soaring: Indigenous Youth Empowerment Gathering

At Soaring, high school students learn about a myriad of career and post-secondary education options. Students participate in career workshops, learn about financial support, and meet Canada’s top employers.

Held annually, Soaring continues to be widely appreciated by the students, educators, sponsors and trade show vendors.

Surveys completed by student participants provide insight into their thoughts about post-secondary education. The following is a snapshot of what youth shared:

“By attending Soaring 2018, I learnt so much about not only my people(s), but about post-secondary education and possible career paths that education can lead to.”

“The most valuable thing about Soaring to me, has been going to each session and learning about peoples experiences and how they have overcome barriers in life.”

“The best part of Soaring to me, was being able to learn anything and everything about all sorts of jobs or career choices available to indigenous people like myself.”

Building Brighter Futures: Bursaries, Scholarships, and Awards

“I would like to commend you on the financial support you continue to provide to students like myself that sacrifice leaving home, who have to endure financial struggles to accomplish goals in order to improve circumstances and break the cycle. Receiving this award is definitely an incentive.”

Indspire Bursary Recipient

Indspire provides financial support for Indigenous students across Canada to assist them in completing their post-secondary education. In 2017-2018, Indspire awarded over $14,000,000 through 4,942 financial bursaries, scholarships and awards.

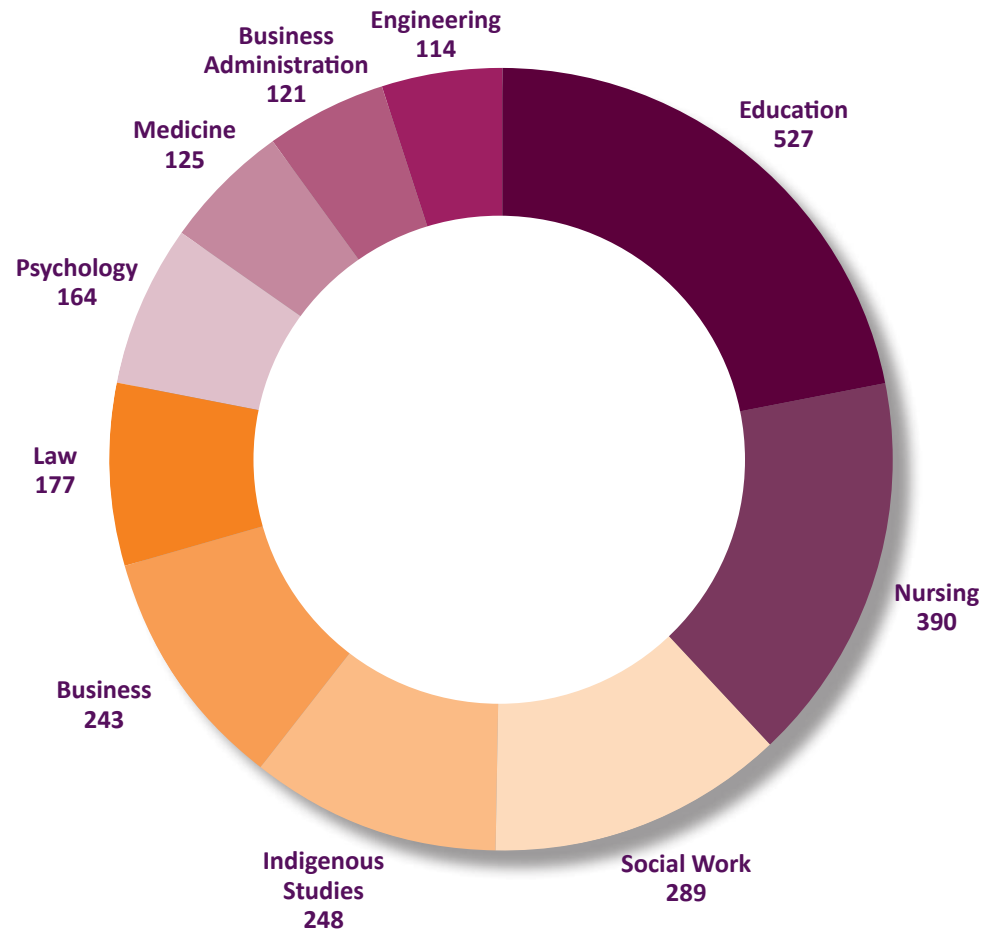

“My mom is now on disability and my sister stays at home and supports her financially and cares for her overall health. My hope is that one day I can support my mother as she supported me through high school, and it starts with a university degree.”

Building Brighter Futures: Bursaries, Scholarships, and Awards cont'd

"I cannot begin to thank you enough for supporting me with this scholarship and bursary. I have been in school for the past 7 years, which has been stressful financially. This award will make a huge difference in my life as I have to pay for the national exam fees and becoming registered as a physiotherapist once I have graduated at the end of October. The National exam fees alone are $2500 and then $1000 to become licensed. After 7 years of university, I do not have much savings left. I have also been unable to work the past 2 years of my Master program because of the amount of course work required to be successful. This award will allow me to put it towards my exam and registration fees."

Indspire Bursary Recipient

The 2017 federal budget allocated $25 million to Indspire's Building Brighter Futures: Bursaries, Scholarships and Awards program over five years beginning in 2017-2018, and contributions from non-federal sources will be matched by the federal government up to March 31, 2022.

2018 Indspire Awards

The Indspire Awards recognize Indigenous professionals and youth who demonstrate outstanding achievement and serve as invaluable role models for Indigenous youth. Each year, recipients are selected by a national jury of past laureates.

The Indspire Awards were established in 1993 in conjunction with the United Nations' International Decade of the World's Indigenous Peoples, and after 25 years, we have honoured 337 outstanding First Nation, Inuit, and Métis individuals. These positive role models are a source of inspiration for Indigenous youth.

The 2018 Indspire Awards were held on March 23, 2018 at the Centennial Concert Hall in Winnipeg.

Every effort has been made to ensure the accuracy of the information provided in this report, and Indspire regrets any errors or omissions. If you have any questions or comments, please contact Indspire at donate@indspire.ca.

LIFT and Indspire have partnered for a three-year agreement at an estimated value of $1M for both in-kind and paid services. LIFT estimated at $107K in-kind services to March 31, 2018 to support Indspire's desire in significantly moving the needle on Indigenous education outcomes.

This would mean that Indspire would be contributing an increased number of Indigenous youth graduating, entering the workforce, and contributing to the economy, and have the tools to measure and report out on their impact.
